Bob,

The attached report is a good example of the kind of work the Office of Imagery Analysis does regularly as part of a broader NFAC effort to answer an important intelligence question. In this case our research effort was designed and carried out in close conjunction with analysts in the Office of Weapons Intelligence who are grappling with the problem of assessing Soviet [redacted] air defense capability -- see attribution note on page 21

NOTE FOR: Director, OIA

FROM:

SA/D/NFAC

Noel,

One suggestion that would help in getting Mr. Bowie to focus on your research papers: why not send them with a cover note from you summarizing what is inside, plus making clear to a non-technical reader like Mr. Bowie the significance of the paper's findings to a current issue or negotiation he is following? This would assure that Mr. Bowie would at least read your note. As an alternative, you could send a copy of such papers to the DCI via Mr. Bowie (again making clear why he should read it from technical and foreign policy perspectives). Again, this would assure that Mr. Bowie was aware of your accomplishments.

Best regards for Christmas.
